Chief James Trzaski,

Please see the attached Fire Marshal activity report for the month of September 2026.

The FMO attended the NFPA Steps to Safety program. This program is a nationwide campaign covering many aspects of community risk reduction. Most notably it addresses senior safety and how to build partnerships with different agencies to support the senior community. It stresses offering home safety surveys, educational workshops. Community partners ideally offer services like grab bar installations and accessibility ramps. We look forward to taking the concepts from this training and building on our existing programs.

The FMO participated in the initial school year 26-27 Farm Hill and Bielefield safety committee meetings. These are in addition to the all schools safety meetings led by the Board of Education. During the individual school meetings we review fire drill procedures, any open fire code violations and provide input to any issues on their agenda as appropriate.

The FMO assisted the Durham fire marshals with the food truck and tent inspections at the Durham Fair. We attempt to do this every year not only to assist our mutual aid partners, but also as a learning experience. These types of inspections only happen a few times a year. This opportunity allows us to stay proficient in this realm for when they pop up in our jurisdiction.

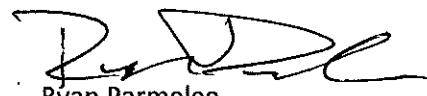

The FMO participated in the annual Collaborative ABA Services meet and greet. This event brings together partners in the special populations community and allows them to showcase their services.

Please feel free to contact the FMO with any questions regarding the supporting documentation for Activity, Inspections and Response.

Sincerely,

James Mastroianni
Fire Marshal

Monthly Training Report

2026 Annual TECC Refresher

The 2026 Annual Tactical Emergency Casualty Care (TECC) Refresher Training Program, conducted through Yale New Haven Hospital Center for EMS, provided fire department personnel with an annual review and reinforcement of evidence-based practices for managing traumatic injuries in high-threat and austere environments. The program emphasized the principles of TECC, including responder safety, hemorrhage control, airway and breathing interventions, casualty assessment, triage, patient movement, and coordination between fire, EMS, and other public-safety disciplines. The training supports continued operational readiness by reinforcing critical hands-on skills and establishing a common framework for the initial management of trauma patients until definitive medical care can be provided. Yale New Haven Hospital Center for EMS provides continuing education and medical oversight to EMS providers throughout the region. Course: 2026 Annual TECC Refresher Provider: Yale New Haven Hospital Center for EMS Topic: Tactical Emergency Casualty Care / High-Threat Trauma Management Audience: Fire Department / EMS Personnel Training Type: Annual Refresher / Continuing Education

Fire on the Water w/ Will Heiney

Fire On the Water: Tactics, Challenges and Hazards at Marina Incidents & Fires Every agency near any sizeable body of water more than likely has at least one (1) marina in their response area. High life hazard, high dollar value damages and an increasing frequency of incidents combine to present a growing problem. The during / post covid timeframe to present has seen a rapid rise in the marine / boating industry. As a result, marina related incidents are increasing in frequency and severity. This class will focus on the tactical considerations and challenges of managing incidents at marina's whether on land or water, summer or winter. Challenges such as long stretches down 400-800ft docks, multiple vessels on fire at dock and adrift, boating accidents, incidents with multiple victims in the water (MCI), and much more. Also discussed are the hazards to firefighters, EMS and other responders when operating at these incidents, as well as actions responders can take to mitigate risk while operating in this often overlooked, yet austere environment.
